The IEEE Computer Society Society/Standard for Cryptographic Protection of Data on Block-Oriented Storage Devices P1619

Title: Standard for Cryptographic Protection of Data on Block-Oriented Storage Devices

Scope: This standard specifies elements of an architecture for cryptographic protection of data

Purpose: This standard defines specific elements of an architecture for cryptographically protected data

***** MESSAGE FROM THE WORKING GROUP CHAIR *****

Protecting stored information for individuals, corporations, and governments has become more

- * the widespread use of portable personal storage;
- * the vulnerability of these devices to loss, theft, or capture; and
- * third-party management of corporate storage;

In response to these issues, we have seen the emergence of compliance requirements in the following areas:

- * regulatory (HIPAA, GLBA, CA SB1386/AB1950);
- * legal (privacy); and
- * industry specific mandates (PCI DSS).

To make activities that rely on storage technology viable, industry and government leaders must

Or, follow this process:

1. Log onto myProject; click the link for myBallot.
2. Click the link for myBallot Control Panel (if applicable); click the link for "Show/Join Open Ballot Group"
3. Scroll down until you find the open ballot group of interest to you; then scroll over to the group name.
4. Select a classification category and click "OK" at the bottom of the screen. You will receive a confirmation message.

If you are not an IEEE SA Member, you can either enroll in a single ballot by paying a per-ballot fee or enroll in IEEE SA Membership.

OPTION 1 - I am already an IEEE Member and I want to add Standards Association Membership. Go to myBallot Control Panel.

OPTION 2 - I am not an IEEE Member but would like to enroll in both IEEE and IEEE Standards Association Membership. Go to myBallot Control Panel.

OPTION 3 - I am not interested in becoming an IEEE Member, however I would like to enroll as a Standards Association Member. Go to myBallot Control Panel.

OBLIGATIONS AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF BALLOTTERS

Balloting group members are selected to vote on the acceptability of a new or revised standard, and to provide input on the standard's development.

Once the document is ready to be balloted, you will receive notification via email. You will then be able to log onto myProject and vote on the document.
